For this show, Christine says, “Old family photos and memories of playing in a plastic swimming pool were my inspiration, and birds have always attracted me as they seem to have a silent wisdom to share with humans...their bodies are so simple to draw, and I can focus on color, shape and texture.”

Christine Nora Behrens—loving to paint, painting to love

This month's featured artist is Christine Behrens, whose current interest in children's books, printmaking, traditional watercolor, acrylic, sketchbook drawing, travel journals, and art journals started very early.

“My mom was an oil painter and I grew up with a lot of encouragement from her to draw and paint. She even let me and my sister paint an underwater scene on the bathroom walls,” recalls Christine.

Yet at Long Beach State University, Christine majored in English and Creative Writing. Then, while working at Santa Rosa Junior College, she took art classes each semester for 16 years—water color painting, etching, oil painting, acrylic painting, plein air painting, pastel painting, art history, and figure drawing.

“I never get tired of looking at art in books, museums, galleries, and it all influences me in some way,” says Christine. Inspired by an art history class, Christine also traveled to Florence, Italy to study Renaissance painters. And she taught an adult education class on writing and illustrating children's books at Santa Rosa Junior College.

Christine credits two instructors as big influences on her own work. Watercolorist Philip Buller taught her: “Work on a painting until you love it. That's when you'll know it's finished.” Alan Azhderian taught her: “If you can draw the human body, you can draw anything.”

Today, Christine loves drawing and painting characters, implying a bit of narrative in the gestures and faces. She adds, “I tend to paint my characters with their eyes closed with peacefulness or deep concentration that I hope the viewer feels too.”

Regarding technique, Christine adds, “I love to add layer upon layer of paint, paper, text, wax—then take it all off, or sand it down to integrate the elements. After that, I add more and more layers until I feel some type of love for the piece.”

President's Message

First off, I would like to welcome new members...

Judy Hill, Cindy Bramlett, Don Warhurst,
Ruth and William Burita, Sandra Turner-Purvis, Barbara Gauger,
Deborah Britt, Dana Biella Barrow

I hope you all jump right in and use our offerings!

“Heat Wave” was an inspiring, wonderful, show and we had a marvelous turnout for the Second Saturday Art Walk showing. Three of the artists answered questions and gave explanations. The food was good and the crowd lively. There were other great things going on at other venues so we were competing for attendees. This is a good thing. I always enjoy seeing faces new to me. I think we would be surprised by how many people have never heard of the Manley Art Center and Gallery. We are trying to change that. It is time again to choose officers and seek coordinators for 2019. There is a sign up sheet in the classroom. As of yet we have no nominees for treasurer or secretary. Please think of running for one of these offices. We also need coordinators for publicity, workshops, art rental program, and membership. For information on what these positions involve, contact Barbara Jervis, Karen Harris, Brian Childers, or myself.

I am amazed when I hear of the many programs, workshops, and other events of the past. I wonder if our historian, or someone else, could present our historical achievements of the last forty or fifty years to an interested group?

The Festival of Art in Stout Park is planned by a group of committed volunteers each year. The planning involves meeting with a small number of individuals who are willing to look at the big picture, organize the parts, and delegate the tasks. This group varies year-to-year and is the biggest event we hold! Thousands attend this event and it brings much needed tourism to our area! Our vendors love it and always rate it one of the best events they show at.

We need you to step up and help by serving on this planning team, if you are willing and able to commit to meeting about once a month for the purpose, can delegate to others, are able to communicate reliably, and like to troubleshoot, i.e. solve problems. Our vision is to see a planning team of five people, with several others who are waiting & ready to take on smaller tasks as they arise. Some of the things that come up include public relations, such as articles in the TIDE or local paper, working over the internet/ email with prospective vendors, planning a layout of the site at Stout Park, working with a budget, and logistical preparations for the event weekend.
